What's in the Toolbox?

Much has been discussed regarding the requisite tools in a personal, professional, organizational toolbox. The implementation of the Carson City Library’s 2014-2019 Strategic Plan relies heavily on four tools. Personal experience combines the efforts of former Library Director Sara Jones and Deputy/Interim Director Tammy Westergard. Research has been accumulated through a survey of library patrons (Survey Monkey), a website (www.onward.ning.com), and a space needs assessment compiled by Kathy Page. Commitment by a talented, determined staff has shown how self-motivation, grit and openness prove the adage, “Let smart people do what they do best and then get out of the way.” Finally, pragmatism from the Foundation, the Friends of the Library and a Board of Trustees with three new members, has facilitated opportunities to recall triumphs, to examine failures as conduits for growth and to demonstrate a willingness to adapt, grow and change.

The award winning (Broadband Hero Award) Carson Library proudly serves the entire community, young and old alike. With an efficient use of current space and strong collaborations and partnerships with community entities such as the Boys & Girls Club, the Carson City School District, the Board of Supervisors, UNR and Nevada Legal Services, the Library maintains a cutting edge presence in Carson City. Our visionary new Director and enthusiastic new Youth Services Librarian will have support and assistance from a veteran staff and vested stakeholders. When one door closes, another will often open. With our new Strategic Plan, sound leadership and expanding technology, the Library is poised to make significant strides -- inspiring learning, facilitating connections and creating opportunities for the 300,000 yearly visitors. Whatever you need in your toolbox, the Library can help. Check it out.

Sandy Foley

Library Board of Trustees, Chairperson
From THE INTERIM DIRECTOR

The five-year strategic plan that I signed on with, A Place for Everyone 2009 – 2013, had ambitious goals and the previous library director, Sara Jones, led an effective charge to deliver on those promises daily. Those goals and the work that went with them are what inspired me to start library school. Libraries matter.

The final goal of the last five years was not realized: an ambitious effort to provide Carson City with adequate library space for a community of our size in a new facility. Yet, the plan for what would be done in the new space is very much a part of the next five years and is laid out herein under the moniker Level Up, a strategic plan for learning – 2014 – 2019.

This little library’s spaces are more valuable than Manhattan real estate. The strategic plan identifies ways to make do with what we have while establishing priorities. For one thing the balance of available space is finally more focused on youth, particularly teens. For far too long that imbalance has left too many kids out of the library once they pass storytime age. I know from personal experience. This is the library of my childhood and that of my three children.

Currently there is real momentum among community leaders to address workforce readiness and level up marketable skills for every age learner. For the library’s part, quality out-of-school-time programs that are meaningfully linked between formal education, other youth-serving organizations and the workplace is our primary role. It is also necessary to provide the same kinds of learning opportunities for adults in the community who know the importance of staying sharp and being relevant in the workplace.

If these links and partnerships are even a little bit successful, they will make a big difference to the whole community. Young people will get what they need to develop marketable skills (particularly related to technology), find good jobs and take their place within Carson City as productive citizens. The adults will have the chance to build on individual strengths and fill in learning gaps.

This focus for the library provides practical solutions to address some pretty big challenges. The course rarely corrects itself, let’s get to work!

Best,

Tammy Westergard,
Interim Library Director
MISSION

As a center for knowledge and discovery the Carson City Library will inspire learning, facilitate connection and create opportunity for our community.

“Libraries like all other institutions must grow and adapt to changing requirements and conditions. The rate of change in the world today and in our knowledge of it is incredibly fast. We cannot afford to let our libraries slip behind,” --- JFK, 1963

VISION

THE CARSON CITY LIBRARY ...

- is an essential community resource which supports community schools, life-long learning, literacy and digital literacy,
- provides essential technology tools and training to help citizens gain and sharpen marketable skills,
- recognizes community challenges and opportunities and responds nimbly with creativity and an entrepreneurial spirit,
- is a place for everyone to access cultural and civic life,
- is customer focused,
- grows its most valuable resources: a passionate and dedicated staff.

To meet our mission and fulfill our vision, we are directed by the following values day to day with our patrons and one another:

VALUES

WE EMBRACE
The opportunity to provide resources to everyone.

WE ARE COMMUNITY
And as such welcome ways to help people to meet, exchange ideas, and participate.

WE ARE ACCOUNTABLE
To the public as trusted servants

WE COLLABORATE
And as such welcome partnerships throughout the community.

WE RESPECT
And honor diversity, different points of view and the right to privacy and confidentiality.

WE GUIDE
Learning and literacy in all forms.
The Carson City Library Strategic Plan for 2014 – 2019 offers a unified vision and practical approach to deliver public library services over the next five years. The plan outlines emphasis on learning opportunities, access to technology and reconfigured spaces within the main library building on Roop Street. Taken together the library can better serve the community’s most pressing needs, especially those that are related to building or sharpening marketable skills and providing essential support to public, private, charter and home school teachers, students and families.

The Strategic Plan realigns library space and programs to help insure strategic educational ties between the Carson City Board of Supervisors, Carson City School Board and the Carson City Library Board of Trustees. These ties can not only be maintained but year after year also strengthened into an educational learning rope. Those who seek education, information and skill building as a means to individual economic and civic health can do so. Also community-wide prosperity and sustainability will result.

With this plan, the library proclaims its new mission:

As a center for knowledge and discovery the Carson City Library will inspire learning, facilitate connection and create opportunity for our community.

On November 13, 2013, the Carson City Board of Supervisors met jointly with the Carson City School Board and 115 interested community members. Meeting details, among other things, formalized links between the two governing bodies through a joint resolution.

“It was four years ago that this conversation was last had between these two boards, and that’s too long,” said Mayor Bob Crowell. “I’m very pleased to be working with School Board President Lynette Conrad. There is a lot of good work happening throughout the community that shares the roles, responsibilities and rewards of educating our youth to successfully take their place in a complicated economy that is heavily reliant on computer skills and digital literacy. Coming together to see how that is currently being executed in Carson City through a growing network of community partnerships is the point of the meeting. Determining the path to continued success is my goal for this meeting,” said Crowell.

2014 - 2019 key objectives emphasize the library’s role as a community asset that inspires learning with technology tools and programs designed expressly for increasing digital literacy. Meaningfully linked learning opportunities between the formal classroom, home and third places of learning (like the public library) leads to a skilled and qualified local workforce who can compete for higher paying jobs.

“An educated, skilled citizenry will secure our future. The integration of the strategic plans and the exciting partnerships/collaborations demonstrate that collectively, community leadership gets it. We welcome the challenge and look forward to the possibilities,” said Library Trustee Chairwoman Sandy Foley.

In April of 2013, the Library Board of Trustees directed staff to convene a series of community meetings to solicit input about the library, its facilities, resources, programs and services. Strategic planning sessions were incorporated as a part of Trustee monthly meetings onsite at the three different library locations, drawing not only stakeholders but also members of the general public. Between April and June over 120 interested citizens and key community stakeholders provided input, feedback and shared ideas about moving the Carson City Library forward over the next five years. In fact from these groups alone 406 data points were collected.

In 2009 – 2013, strategic planning work delivered an exhaustive needs assessment that included over 5,000 surveys sent to a representative sample of households; and survey findings were tested further to provide a thorough and comprehensive report. The process took over a year and a half, relied on numerous experts and ultimately recommended efforts to deliver a much needed and significantly larger library building. The final goal of the previous plan was not realized, however.

Leveraging investment in the prior studies, in March of 2013, the Library Board of Trustees engaged the services of Page and Associates, the same library facility planning firm who conducted the previous space needs assessment.

This time Page and Associates related prior community knowledge to studying how the library can make do within the layout and reorganization of existing interior space in the main library, since the 2014 – 2019 strategic plan will be executed within the current library spaces.

As such, in June the firm’s lead planner, Kathy Page with H+K Architects’ Jeff Klippenstein as a sub consultant, discussed the building’s service issues with 17 library staff representing all departments. During two in-depth group sessions participants shared their observations regarding:

- The most important things staff would change about the building to improve public service.
- The ways that the building gets in the way of visitors’ ability to have an excellent library experience.
- Areas within the building that contribute to visitor frustration or conflict.
- Services or features that could be reduced in size or eliminated.

Following these discussions, Ms. Page asked each staff member to identify the five issues, in priority order, he or she considers the most important to address. The groups then shared their priority lists and the consultant summarized them by category. The full report is contained within the strategic plan appendix.

Between July and December, Interim Library Director, Tammy Westergard, challenged library staff to look at finding internal alignments and efficiencies to address issues raised during planning sessions. The intent was to move forward with implementation of recommendations from the space planning report that fundamentally would immediately make improvements day to day. In September, the library seamlessly moved to a single point of service model and over the following three months management found solutions to realign work units, floor space and program focus that can forward the goals of 2014 – 2019 strategic plan.

In addition to the quantitative research from the community meetings noted above, management also relied on a patron survey and added day-to-day public feedback as well as updated our community profile. From this work three strategic areas of concentration are presented. Strategies and measures are detailed in the full plan, but in sum the three goals are:

Goal 1- The Carson City Library will inspire learning.

Goal 2- The Carson City Library will facilitate connection.

Goal 3- The Carson City Library will create opportunity.

Unlike any other City department the Carson City Library is governed by a five member, City Supervisor appointed Board of Trustees.

A Library Board of Trustees requires people who believe that the public library is essential to Carson City’s quality of life. These are leaders who are willing to defend the community’s right to robust library materials, services and programs because of a fundamental belief that public library services promote access to life-long learning, enjoyment and civic engagement. Library trustees must have the demonstrated ability to approach people and problems with an open mind, and have the courage to resist pressures which interfere with the community’s democratic right to public library services, places and spaces.

Nevada Revised Statute 379.105 defines the roles and responsibilities of Nevada Public Library Trustees, however, primary activities include:

• working with the Carson City Board of Supervisors to obtain adequate library funding and assist in the review and approval of the annual budget and monthly expenditures as presented by the library director;
• participate in the development and approval of library policies and review policies on a regular, systematic schedule;
• help determine and advocate for reasonable staff salaries and benefits;
• hire, supervise and evaluate the library director;
• study the needs and interests of the community and see that they are addressed, as appropriate by the library;
• act as an advocate for the library through contacts with civic groups and public officials;
• become familiar with the principles and issues relating to intellectual freedom and equitable provision of library services;
• every five years assist in the formulation and adoption of a strategic plan and update it every two years;
• attend the Nevada Library Association conferences and other training opportunities in order to expand knowledge of effective leadership, and consider membership with the Friends of the Carson City Library.

It’s a big job. The strategic plan helps to ensure accountability of key library support groups to the Trustees and offer strategic oversight to the library system and goals.

The goals in this plan are big and doable. As the capital of the Silver State Carson City will lead the way for library services and reinforce their essential value to citizens of every age.
STRATEGIC GOAL #1: The Carson City Library will inspire learning.

The Carson City School District is preparing students for their future in a digital age and transforming teaching and providing every student with access to current 1:1 mobile technology. Emphasis on promoting anytime, anywhere access to collaborative and connected learning environments individualizes student learning and differentiates instruction. Meaningful links between school, home, after school and during the summer are essential to a young person’s ability to keep up. The Carson City Library will inspire learning with a range of materials, equipment, furniture and programs as tools to engage, enable and empower students of all ages and create a gateway to enhance college, career and workforce readiness.

What Success Will Look Like:
- Year over year a steady increase of virtual patrons engaging in all aspects of public library services.
- Digital objects are produced using library tools - quality and quantity of objects increase.
- Library is recognized as central player in lifelong learning and the primary out of school time place for quality learning programs. In other words: learning is fun.
- Library employees recognize themselves as informal guides and skilled information mentors.
- Teachers and educators recognize the library as critical to student achievement.
- Patrons can navigate the virtual world and successfully find authoritative information to help them make decisions, measured anecdotally and with surveys.
- Deputy Sheriff or other security in library - helps keep disruptive people away and good people in the library.
- Young people see the community cares about them by dedicating significant space for their use.
STRATEGIC GOAL #2:
The Carson City Library will facilitate connection.

For decades Carson City has struggled with having enough meeting spaces. Further, for the last seven years the public library usage in Carson City ranks among the highest foot traffic counts for a community of our size. Verified door counts at the public library record over 1,000 patrons each day visit the library – six days a week. In light of the limited space within the library the library will “be where the people are” and flexibly respond to partnership opportunities; repurposing space and resources; customize collections and programs; source new service outlets; and build strategic, focused alliances with community organizations, in particular those that serve youth. The library will also rely on technology to provide right now connection as well as opportunity to share library created digital content.

What Success Will Look Like:
- Everyone in community has and uses a library card—whether they are in the library or virtually.
- Our community is digitally inclusive and has widespread broadband adoption.
- Members of the community use a variety of virtual platforms to stay connected.
- The library is recognized as the community gathering and convening place.
- Reading books in all formats is connected to the person when they need and want it.
- A keeper of the civic truth, the public library is where citizens can get authoritative information on local, state and federal government.
- The library has enough space for people to meet and engage.
- The library furniture is worn out.
STRATEGIC GOAL #3: The Carson City Library will create opportunity.

By providing learning opportunities in computers, health, finances and adult and early literacy, the Carson City Library joins the City in building economic stability and opportunity. There is a clear link between libraries and economic development and prosperity. Making Cities Stronger: Public Library Contributions to Local Economic Development (2007) defines the key economic development services public libraries deliver to support business. The tools of hard working people are technology and access to information. The Library’s resources help meet that need. Good jobs are linked to good skills.

What Success Will Look Like:
- The library is recognized as central player in economic development.
- Business grows and unemployment lowers with library help.
- Ability to sharply focus on business education in particular specific needs of industries best positioned in Carson City.
- Competitive intelligence capacity and analysis - white glove reference help at the BRIC - results in more profitable and diverse business within the community.
- The library is recognized and has better relationships with other business organizations.
- Patrons give back with their time, talent and treasure in measure to what the library gave them.
- The library offers enough space for people to meet and engage.
- A high percentage of community student graduates are career/college ready, are fluent in the digital world and can demonstrate universal skills, these skills are complimented by their library behavior that demonstrates:
  - Reflective learning, that is when figuring out what went wrong and course correcting – or in other words ability to trouble shoot (!)
  - Ability to monitor their own performance and progress regarding tasks that bring them to the library and demonstrate bibliographic skill and independence
  - Working in teams
  - Independent inquiry and curiosity

NEXT STEPS

Fundamentally the first next steps require implementation of the immediate term recommendations, modified through staff analysis, from the Page and Associates space plan. Library staff has worked diligently during the strategic planning process to craft a sound, doable reconfiguration of the existing library space that once completed will allow for operational and program goals to begin. Staff has crafted a six month implementation plan that addresses repurposing library space – see appendix floor maps.

The strategic plan sets forth what is on the horizon for the Carson City Library, and while all the priorities are important it is equally important that they be set into motion. As such a system of shared ownership and accountability for success of the 2014 – 2019 strategic plan is in order.

All key stakeholders, that is administration, staff, the Trustees, Friends of the Library and Library Foundation must have shared understanding of roles, responsibilities and rewards in order to help drive success.

The Friends of the Library have already stepped up to address space issues by moving operations from the library into their own space, freeing up valuable space for new uses. And in a unanimous vote at their last quarterly meeting of 2013, the Carson City Library Foundation (CCLF) voted to commit $33,000 toward renovating and furnishing the library auditorium to house the new Digitorium, a proposed space build-out for approximately 20 MacBook Pro computers, high tech software and more.

“Libraries have always responded to the information needs of their respective communities, and the Carson City Library has gone above and beyond to provide free Internet, digital technology and computer skills instruction. Moreover, acknowledging how intently the Carson City Supervisors and Carson City School District emphasize education in all its forms, the Carson City Library is arguably the community’s most valuable resource where all residents can link to essential online resources and platforms. Reliable Internet connections as well as state of the art computers make the public library a true digital toolbox. It is a no cost place to sharpen technology skills and learn new ones,” said Library Foundation Chairwoman and Board Trustee Pam Graber.

Currently auditorium space houses the Friends of the Library Bookstore and meeting space. Over the next five to six months the bookstore is moving across the street to 711 E. Washington Street, where it will greatly expand its space and hours. In addition to expanding bookstore business, the Friends also hope to host various topical, author and book-signing events. Groups that met in the auditorium will continue to do so in the Digitorium’s open space area, or convene in the Business Resource Innovation Center (BRIC), at 108 East Proctor Street, Carson City, NV.

The Strategic Plan outlines an ambitious effort to help the community “level up” its skills – particularly with technology. Analysis of this work will be used to inform the Director’s annual work plan, the budget process and help evaluate progress toward meeting goals. Flexibility will be a key factor to success .... well that and a can-do attitude. Let’s have fun and get to work!
